Most Common Conditions Treated in Queens

BACK PAIN

Back pain is one of the leading contributors to disabilities around the world. It's also the most common complaint doctors hear. When your back hurts, it affects your life in so many ways — from causing you to miss work and exercise to feelings of frustration and anxiety about your helplessness.

NECK PAIN

Neck injuries are common in the United States. As many as 70% of all adults will have neck pain at some point in their lives. People seek relief from cervical or upper back pain because it limits daily activities and physical tasks.

The background is blurred, suggesting an outdoor setting. The image is partially obscured by a white text box on the left and a large orange graphic on the right.

KNEE PAIN

Your knee is a complex part of your anatomy. It is tough and flexible. As you age it becomes more vulnerable to stress and damage. Seek pain relief from experienced, nationally recognized doctors in pain management in New York. You'll have access to the most advanced diagnostic equipment, rapid lab testing, and dedicated rehabilitation physicians and specialists. We deliver the latest in pain treatment options. Don't suffer quietly. Has your pain been evaluated as quickly as possible to prevent further damage?

SHOULDER PAIN

Shoulder pain comes in many forms. You can have right shoulder blade pain, left shoulder pain, neck pain with spreading shoulder discomfort or general pain around your shoulders that limits your mobility. The experienced doctors at Astoria pain management, the best pain and injury doctors in New York, diagnose and provide appropriate shoulder pain treatment based on your specific need. Left untreated, sharp pain in the shoulder can lead to chronic conditions that can change your life.
